WIMAC SNOSHU-NEWS

I was fortunate to be at the Western Massachusetts High School X-Country Championships at Northfield Mt this November. I witnessed Lauren Stocker and Zach Gordon win the Division I individual titles, and I realized both of these young adults have participated at some snowshoe events of ours. Enjoy - Ed

Not really sure what you want me to say about Zach Gordon... other than he is a great kid, all-around not just as an athlete but as a person. At the end of his freshmen year on XC team, Brad named him and another freshmen, Ben Krol, co-captains of the XC team. People were peeved that Brad did that. It was unheard of that a "senior" wasn't captain. Brad just thought that these two kids were so much more focused, disciplined, mature, etc. that they could lead the PHS team better than anyone else. Zach (and Ben) were captains for the rest of their career.

Recently, Zach was MVP named of Berkshire County School High X-Country for the 2nd year in a row. Both Brad and I coached Zach since he was a freshmen at Pittsfield HS. I coached him in Track and Brad in X-Country. He is a hard working, disciplined, motivated, dedicated young man. He ran all his races from the heart. He never wanted to get beat.

Brad and I had him running Greylock every weekend during our seasons. It was something he always looked forward to.

Tuesday, January 23rd Berkshire Eagle: Gordon was masterful in his final high school campaign. He ran the table in county meets and his Western Mass. championship added to the family legacy. His father and PHS co-coach, Brad, and Joe, his uncle, both had won Western Mass. titles at Amherst High.

Gordon won some impressive regional invitational meets this year and leaves as one of the county's all-time best in what is an impressive local history in the sport. He proved he could run wire to wire or come from behind. His junior season was dominant, but he wasn't satisfied and upgraded his training over the summer.

The work paid off, and the new Gordon was a clean running and efficient machine. There was sacrifice for sure, although maybe only Gordon knew what he gave up to reach his own expectations. One thing for sure, he gave what he had and worked hard to bleed out all the genetic ability he was blessed with. Lauren Stocker placed 4^{th} last season at the Western Massachusetts High School Division I Championship Cross Country Meet at Northfield Mountain. Such a high finish usually secures a certain feeling – a certain sense – that one might have a chance to win the next season.

But Stocker didn't get that feeling. The 17- year old from Westfield needed more proof before she considered herself a legitimate contender to place 1^{st} at the season's biggest meet.

Lauren's season started to fall into place in mid-October. "We had an invitational at Wickham Park (in Manchester, CT). I was the first person to finish on my team, and I beat the other girls from Western Mass from other teams," she said. "I was happy with that."

Next on the schedule were duel meets against Longmeadow and Amherst Regional, which both had top-flight runners.

"The Longmeadow duel meet, I won that at Forest Park," she said. "I tied my PR on that course that day. Amherst was a week later. I thought I could win, and I did, and I ran a PR by 27 seconds."

"Once I won that meet, I knew I had just beaten every single girl on last season's state championship team. That's the day I knew I could win Western Mass."

For the Championship at Northfield, Lauren reflected on the race, "I had a plan. I was going to stay with whoever had the lead at the first mile, make a move, and make it big enough so no one could catch me the rest of the race."

"I wasn't nervous because I knew I had beaten every single girl on that starting line."

Lauren won by 18 seconds, finishing the 3.1-mile course in 20:41. Her coach said "she ran great, she ran smart, she had a plan. I think she was confident. She knew it was going to be hard, but being a senior, you have to believe you can win. She gave it her best, and it worked out."

We had a gorgeous day, temp in low 20's with sunshine and little wind. The snow was crisp and firm underfoot. Folks loved the new course which includes some really fun single track sections. 15 additional in the 3.5KM. Thanks, Zeke

BRAVE THE BLIZZARD X3

Vol. 05 Issue 02.

Whatever happened to "Third time is the charm?" Apparently the Snow Gods, lulled by the odd spring-like January weather, were thinking more in terms of "Strike three and you're out!" Or was the Albany Running Exchange simply tempting fate with a name like Brave the Blizzard? Despite their zany, brave new world approach to running and life in general, perhaps the folks at ARE were pushing their luck with such an audaciously boastful attitude. An impromptu post race renaming contest drew such gems as Muddy Snowshoe, Winter Trail Series #1 and Global Warming Gallop. Not as catchy, perhaps, but more to the point.

It seems that the Curse of Three extended even to the course itself. For as race director Josh Merlis pointed out, not once in its three year history did we ever get to experience the original wheeled and GPS'd route. The first year, treacherous ice shortened the trail to a two mile slip and slide; the second was readjusted to avoid lingering ice patches; the third featured a redesigned course due to off-limits areas within the park itself. This means, of course, that if you ran all three years, you would have been granted three PRs. That doesn't happen too often. And next year, if we finally get snow, you will be guaranteed a snowshoe PR even in the unlikely event that the course is an exact duplicate of a previous route. So we are all winners!

Despite torrential rainfall the day before, seventy-eight of us showed up for what we anticipated would be a muddy tour. Were we ever surprised! The Pine Bush is so sandy that the mud found permanent foothold in only a few easily avoided depressions. Jim Carlson, who still insists that his bad knees can withstand only the softest of snow or gunkiest of mud, did not let his pre-race disclaimers hinder him, as he jumpstarted ahead of me and into the middle of the fray. For this round, instead of wearing last year's combat boots, he had done his homework. After a surreptitious consultation with Chief Snowshoer, Edward Alibozek, he had purchased high-tech Stealth Salomons, with a sleek zigzag lacing system and all the latest bells and whistles. I was astonished that I didn't hear him jingling ahead of me all the way to the finish line. Foiled again!

They say that running in the woods, even on snowless paths, is therapeutic because it releases the inner child. So...one would think that after a 3.5 mile romp, we might have shed, on the outside, two years per mile. If this theory seems somehow beyond belief, ample documentation can be found by scanning the articles on any ultrarunning website. Note how many ultrarunners require a support crew just to keep them focused and on track and observe how many finish in a near-nascent state, barely able to stumble to the beer tent and definitely not able to tackle the long drive home.

It was no coincidence that a fantasy Snowperson started our journey towards adolescence, waving us toward the second star to the right and straight on till morning. Those of us who followed Snowperson's directions found ourselves shedding, not the normal two years per mile, but much, much, more. To be sure, we were all surprised at how many ten and eleven year-olds completed the race with first-sheet results status. I, personally, at the respectable age of 59 (59-6.5=52.5) was thrashed soundly by two eleven year-olds and two ten year-olds, with one of them placing in the top ten. In fact, these athletes were themselves astonished at their transformation from responsible, tax-paying adults to playful, carefree children.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Fountain of Youth and it is located smack dab in the middle of the Pine Bush Preserve. If you are a race director and believe that this Peter Pan effect could enhance your own event, know that the Albany Running Exchange is where miracles happen and the everyday becomes extraordinary. Even without snow!

FROSTY'S DASH 5KM TRAIL RUN

CLARKS RULE WINTERFEST!!!

With the critical no-snow situation, ice-laden fallen trees, closed park trails and upcoming Stryderland elections, President Laura was getting rather testy. Just ask Jeff Clark, the President's husband. The snow situation got so desperate that Jeff wore his favorite dress shoes, minus protective ducks, and I plucked down big bucks at Hoffman's car wash. The next day, just after I had reluctantly sent out the "Come to the Winterfest trail race" message, it began to snow. Immediately, I knew the snow gods had responded. For these were not the occasional flurry flakes where you feel compelled to root for each one as it meanders to the ground. Instead, these were enthusiastic, down-to-business models.

Nevertheless, after spending roughly fifteen hours picking up sticks and moving small trees, all the while risking arrest on closed Stryderland park trails, I had definitely wandered off the campaign trail. Not only that, but I felt my power slowly eroding. Do I tell the prisoners working the wood chip machine to pick up after themselves? And would they even care who President Laura was? Where was Jeff when you really need him? And so, if I didn't have time to do any do door-to-door campaigning, I had to use other, more devious methods to insure that the name "Clark" remained in the public eye. Stuffing the ballot box was definitely illegal, but a hasty consultation with Judge Jeff revealed that there was nothing on the books about weighting the race results with multiple Clarks.

Success at last! The first finisher was none other than Ken Clark, easily recognizable by his usual yellow Shenipsit singlet. Don't ask why he wears a singlet to a snowshoe race, but since Shenipsits are Striders with an "i" instead of a "y" I figured there were close cousins and could be counted in the voting tally. In number four position was Saratoga Stryder Jason Clark, who is (eat your heart out here, folks) primarily a biker (think Lance). On his heels in fifth position was Richard Clark, sprinting all the way to the ballot box.

But that was just the beginning. There were other Clarks strategically inserted at key points. You could hear the crowds chanting, "Clark! Clark! Clark!" They couldn't go wrong. Eighth woman was Jason's wife, Cheryl Clark, in serious training for her first Ironman. Ken took his Clark responsibilities seriously by bringing along his daughter, Erin Clark, who crossed the finish line as eleventh woman. I brought up the rear, shepherding along all the other Clarks, and collecting any stray ballots.

The results do not tell the entire story, however, for there was one more Clark out on the course, maintaining a high political profile, offering directions and encouragement, kissing babies and petting dogs. That person was, of course, Judge Jeff, who saw no conflict of interest in the fact that (1) he was campaigning and (2) he was the President's husband. As co-director, he naturally knew all the back trails and hidden haunts and so was able to pop up time and time again as the race progressed. Contrary to rumors circulating after the race, cloning is strictly illegal in Stryderland and there truly was one and only one Jeff out there in multiple locations.

Hopefully, this effort will see its own results on election night. Goodness knows, it didn't help me much during the race itself. After issuing his usual shoulder/back disclaimers, Rich Busa promptly pulled away. By the time I caught up with him, Jeff had caught up with us both and enthusiastically cheered for his wife and running mate. That meant Rich knew exactly where I was at any given moment. I had been counting on overtaking him during the middle section where he typically slows to gather himself for the final push. But this was not to be. Fortunately, Rich is a WMACer and not a Stryder so his vote doesn't count.

NEWS FROM MT HOOD, OREGON

We'll I can't believe it, but I got to do a snowshoe race here in Oregon before the first WMAC race. I'm so sad to hear about horrible winter you're having so far. I was hoping by now I'd be able to live the WMAC series vicariously thru seeing results online.

Anywho, I won the first of only 2 snowshoe races in all of Oregon this winter. About 100 people showed up for the 4k / 8k races on an out & back course on a snowmobile trail. Yeah, 4 to 8 feet of snow and a zillion square miles of terrain and we go out and back on a snow-covered forest service road. On the plus side, there was no wind, temps in the mid-20's, some sun and great views of Mt. Hood on the 2nd half of the race.

I'm looking forward to race #2 at Frog Lake in 2 weeks. I've got my fingers crossed for some snow for you all back East.

> Cheers, Richard Bolt

ART GULLIVER UPDATE

November 28th letter from Art:

On October 28th, I suffered a blood clot of .75 mm in the cerebellum portion of my brain. The portion of the brain that was damaged was responsible for balance and coordination. It also makes you constantly light headed.

Before I go any further, I would like to thank all WMAC'ers and friends for your cards, thoughtfulness and prayers. You are a great group of people!

Physiotherepy is prescribed as soon as possible. The saying, "you get out what you put in" holds true in most stroke cases. Determination is the key.

Lucky for me, I was a trail ultra-runner, who also doesn't sweat. All the therapy is designed to make me feel uncomfortable. It fits right in! How much more uncomfortable can you feel than a runner who is running on a 90 degree day and doing a 50-miler, who is dubbed "the Human Furnace"?

After a night in the ER and of constant vomiting which they claimed was normal, it took another day and a half plus an MRI to find out that I suffered a stroke.

Arriving at Burbank Hospital for therapy on the 4th of November, I walked with the aid of a walker and only going about five steps before getting nauseous. The therapy was $3 \frac{1}{2}$ hours each day but I was able to scrounge up a couple more hours each day. I was told all the running and my good physical shape for my age really helped me progress.

In seven days I was home without an aid for walking. Out patient therapy is two days a week. It's hard to believe the things that I have trouble doing are things that I normally took for granted.

As I write this letter it is exactly one month since it happened. I'm not sure how far I will go but I hope to be back soon in some capacity.

On Plavix for life.

February 13th Update from Rich Busa:

"Talked to Art the other day and he's doing OK. He said he did 14 miles of run, jog walk and felt fine. His goal is to be ready for either Muddy Moose or Northern Nipmuck."

"Let me know after what snowshoe race the South Face Farm Breakfast is going to be, as Art wants to come and see everyone.
